AYER'S Sarsaparilla

cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, Catarrh, and all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood; expelling the blood-poisons from the system, enriching and renewing the blood, and restoring its vitalizing power.

During a long period of unparalleled usefulness, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has proven its perfect adaptation to the cure of all diseases originating in poor blood and a weakened vitality. It is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier and blood-food that can be used.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.
"AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has cured me of the Inflammatory Rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years."
W. H. MOORE.
Durham, Ia., March 2, 1882.

"Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. I have not been troubled with the Rheumatism since. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public."
E. F. HARRIS.
River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

"Last March I was so weak from general debility that I could not walk without help. Following the advice of a friend, I commenced taking AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and before I had used three bottles I felt as well as I ever did in my life. I have been at work now for two months, and I think your SARSAPARILLA the greatest blood medicine in the world."
JAMES MAYNARD.
520 West 42d St., New York, July 19, 1882.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Bolls, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

THE NIGHT BEFORE THE MORNING.

O, the night before the mowing,
When the warm south wind was blowing,
It was pleasant and sweet to pass
Ankle deep through flower and grass—
Grass and flowers so proudly blowing
On the night before the mowing.

But when next my feet went straying,
Men were busy with the hay;
I saw the sharp scythe swiftly pass
Through nodding flowers in low grass,
Till blowing grass and flowers were lying Underneath the hot sun—dying.

But 'twas not long ere sweet content
Filled the meadow with woodriffs' scent;
And flowers and grass, as if sighing,
Had learned the meaning of the M. Y.
And why they were so proudly blowing
On the night before the mowing.

Maiden, unto woman growing,
Maiden, with the loose hair downing,
With eyes blue as the skies above,
Face as fair as the rose of love,
Crowned with youth and joy and beauty,
Thou shalt learn diviner duty.

Off when life has fairest showing
It is ready for the mowing;
Then should trouble, pain or strife
Lay the blade to thy young life;
Do not fear; on some sweet morrow
Thou shalt learn the way to sorrow.
—MAY A. B. in Harper's Weekly.

He Froke Him Up.

The other morning, while the urbane manager of Woodward's Gardens was smoking a four-bit cigar, and meditatively listening to the muted wails of a tome that had just been swallowed alive by the big anteconda, a tall, thin, scientific looking man, with a goatee and blue-glasses, entered the gate and remarked in an insinuating manner:

"Of course, you pass the scientific fringe, is it?"

"Of course, we do not," said the showman, emphatically.

"But, not the servants, not the pioneers in the great march of the mind into the hinterland of the infinite beyond?" returned the professor, with great surprise.

"I will not deceive you," sarcastically replied the proprietor of the only salamander: "we pass nothing but the quills on the ret of a reprimand—I mean the press. You can't see the ostridge, unless you come down and put it in."

"Dear me, dear me!" sighed the scientist, reflectively. "To think that a professor of cosmographic cosmology should be denied admittance to a third-class seat! As the kangatibus be in fact?"

"Skam—which?" asked the tiger
importer.

"Hy, the Skamgatibus; you've got one, haven't you?"

"Ye-es-s. I believe we've a small female somewhat res," said the grizzly's friend, doubtfully.

"Why, I never knew a first-class collection to have less than two pairs,"
said the professor contemptuously;
"how do your Azimuths stand this cold weather, eh?"

"Azimuths?" asked the Napoleon aggator of curiosities "what's them?"
Some kind of bird—you don't mean ostridge?"

"Ostridges be hanged?" said the successor of Darwin. "Ostridges are nothing. I've shot more ostridges with quail shot than you've got hairs on your head. You tell me you haven't got a single Azimuth to your back?"

"I don't believe I have," admitted the alligator bender, mortified; "what are they like?"

"Oh, they're of the order Spinalis, about eight feet high. Fur peels off in the spring, you know—the Siberian species. I mean I suppose you've got one of those Rectangular African Flipgobblers that reached New York the other day?"

"No," said the much agitated showman; "here I've been keeping an agent in New York on a big salary to look out for attractions and he doesn't catch on to the first blamed thing. Spends all our money on second-hand panthers and kangaroos with the rheumatics. I'll ounce him by telegraph."

"Haven't even got a Flipgobblin, eh?"
mused the scientist, in a tone of great pity. "And I shouldn't be surprised if you didn't have a Golden Celestial Cas-pider in your whole show."

"Neither I have—neither I have," replied the wretched promoter of pelicans,
in a tone of great bitterness. "So poe
you just step in, sir, and look round;
maybe there's something else you could say—"

"N n o, I guess not," said the tall man. "It would hardly pay me to spend so much valuable scientific time in a fourth-class show like this. Not even an Azimuth, eh? I should think you'd be a raid of being actually mobbed some time. I'm sorry for you, my good man; sorry for you. I've no doubt you mean well, but—not a solitary Skamgatibus—Great Scott!"

An' as the disciple of Andubon passed into a saloon across the street a d swapped a lead nicker or a glass of beer the bar keeper heard him chuckle somewhat to the effect that he had got even on that old hyena panther, and don't you forget it.

Somnambulism in Dogs.

There is something peculiar about somnambulism when considered from a scientific and philosophical standpoint. The sleep-walker, it will be found, still retains a dim idea, even while he is asleep, of the condition of affairs when he went to sleep. For instance, if he leaves his clothes in a certain part of the room on retiring, he knows when he rises just where to find them, even in the dark. This is a question which opens up a wonderful field for physiological and mental research.

While young and giddy we became a somnambulist, and excited a great deal of curiosity by our strange freaks during sleep, and this one question of the slumbering mind and its memory of facts existing prior to sleep, was the most remarkable thing about it all to us. We puzzled over that a good deal. At night we would retire to rest, and the next thing we would know we would wake up in the middle of a contiguous melon patch, and there would be two or three other somnambulists there in the same patch, and as much surprised as we were. Still there is the same truth staring us in the face. Every somnambulist there had through his sleep retained in his semi-conscious state a perfect recollection of where every article of his clothing was and how to get out of the up-stairs window without waking the old people.

By and by the owner of the melon patch procured, at great expense, a large, humorous bull-dog, who was also a somnambulist. He walked in his sleep a good deal. That is why we quit. We didn't propose to descend to the level of the brute creation. We just said, if a bull-dog wants to som-namb, he can do so and we will leave the field to him.

We made this resolution one night
just after we had plugged a watermelon.
While stooping over in the act, we felt a pang of conscience and heard our suspenders break.

Perhaps the casual reader has never sat down on a buzz saw and felt himself gradually fading away. If so he does not know what it is to form the acquaintance of a somnambulist bull-dog
in the prime of life.

After that, somnambulism didn't have such a run in our family for a while.
We never slept so sound that we didn't remember places and objects that had made an impression on us prior to slumber, and that is why we say that there is something in this matter that scientists would do well to look into.

The House of Representatives on Saturday passed the bill to forbid the importation of adulterated tea and to take the duty off of articles imported for the Louisville and Denver expositions.

GOVERNOR NEWELL, of Washington Territory, has been urging upon Congress the admission of that territory to Statehood. The Governor is a "played out" Republican politician, from New Jersey, and probably expects if the territory is made a State, to manipulate his way into the U. S. Senate. But as the population of the territory according to the last census was only 75,116, and as representation is based on population, it is hard to imagine what grounds there are for creating Washington into a State.

The idea of systematic instruction of women in the industrial arts has been successfully developed in France, according to a writer to the London Times. Not only in Paris, but throughout the country, schools that teach particular trades to women have been formed. In one, nearly two thousand young women have received thorough training in millinery, needlework, wood engraving, painting and porcelain, or designing. Workshops affiliated to the school by a pecuniary arrangement furnish actual practice. So successful have been these schools, and so superior the graduates in their work, the particular trades have established similar institutions for the express purpose of fitting their own workwomen in occupations not taught in the large ones, as in the brass and copper trade, and in the manufacture of clocks and watches.

THERE is no public sentiment in favor of the increase of the army or navy, says the American Register. The sentiment that favors such increase is very private and select. The General favors it because he is the center of a military coterie that has no army for a back ground, and is naturally feeling very much out of place. Secretary Lincoln favors it because he is corralled by General Sherman and West Point. Secretary Chandler favors it because he is surrounded by a host of dry-land rear admirals, who, as the French would say, have no raison d'etre, and who liberally translated, are ducks out of water. Behind them all are a host of voracious contractors and a full and overflowing treasury continually increased by a swollen revenue.

NEWS BREVITIES.

The Bernese Government has forbidden any meeting of the Salvation Army within the canton.

A Cincinnati commercial traveler accidentally killed a saloon keeper at North Vernon, Ind., while carelessly handling a pistol.

Augustus Harris, lessee of Drury Lane theatre, gave a free performance of the pantomime "Sindbad," on the 8th to more than four thousand of the poorest children of London.

While the attacks upon the Jews in Hungary are at their height, Caspar Molnar a Christian merchant of Salnok, has spread astonishment far and wide by bequeathing his entire property to the Jewish school of the town.

Mr. Thomas Chambre Vaughan, a large landed proprietor of Shropshire, Eng., was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment for perjury in a case in which the Vicar of Loppington (the Rev. Mr. Benson) was charged with killing a pheasant without a license. A laborer named Woodward, who gave false evidence in the same case, was committed for four months.

In three of the principal hospitals of Paris, the Sisters of Charity, numbering about one hundred, are at once to be replaced by ordinary male and female attendants. This step has been forced upon the administration of public assistance by the Paris Municipal Council, who have made the continuation of their annual endowment of seventeen millions of francs conditional upon its execution.

A "lightning train" is to be introduced on the 1st of May on the railroad between Vienna and Paris. It is to be run twice a week, and will make the distance in 27 hours. The train will stop only at a few of the most important stations. If this experiment proves successful, a similar train will be started to make the trip between Paris and Constantinople. For this distance 84 hours are to be allowed.

Gas of unprecedented cheapness is to be made, if the promises of a Chicago inventor are kept. His process of manufacture is to use up all the usual by-products—coke, gas tar, ammonia, and fixed carbon—in the production of gas. Nothing will be left but a deliquescent slag. Every atom of hydrogen and carbon in the coal will be turned into gas. Instead of ten or twelve thousand feet of gas from a ton of coal, he will obtain 40,000 feet. Test works are to be built at Elgin.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain it effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER,

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District,
ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan., 20, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with Kendall's Spavin Cure has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ringbone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours,
P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880.

B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with Kendall's Spavin Cure, one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. ALL Druggists have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Keosauqua Falls, Vermont. 187d.

TRACK-LAYING on the Kentucky Central extension is progressing at the rate of a mile a day in good weather.

The Maysville merchants are looking forward to a brisk spring trade, and have made their preparations accordingly.

The Ripley Budget says a thirty pound cat-fish was found swimming around in the second story of one of the inundated dwellings there last week.

The body of Isaac Moore, colored, who was drowned about ten days ago, in the river near the pump house was found on Saturday morning, near the scene of the accident, by Mr. Frederick, sawyer at W. B. Mathews & Co's, mill.

MESSRS. WINDHORST & BLUM, merchant tailors, advertise elsewhere that they have received their spring supply of imported and domestic goods, which they will make to order on reasonable terms. They guarantee their work to be the best.

Is your hair turning gray and gradually falling out? Hall's Hair Renewer will restore it to its original color, and stimulate the follicles to produce a new and luxuriant growth. It also cleanses the scalp, eradicates dandruff, and is a most agreeable and harmless dressing.

The Emmet Rifles left a good record behind them at Grayson. The troops who were here Saturday all speak well of the good behavior and soldierly qualities of the Maysville company. Capt. Fitzgerald was referred to as one of the most popular and efficient officers in the State Guard on duty at Grayson.

About one hundred feet of the railroad track on the eastside of the trestle caved in on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock. Laborers were put to work at repairing it the same day, and by five o'clock Sunday afternoon had completed a trestle over which the cars are running with safety. The work was well and rapidly done.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Judge Stanton is better and will be able to leave his room in a few days.

Lieut. E. H. Hanks and Mr. Frank Fielding, of the Lawrenceburg Guards, who missed the train Saturday, left for their home this morning.

We find the following among the "flood notes" of the Bracken Bulletin:

Ben. Perham has proven himself to be a public benefactor, during the recent flood, as he has worked night and day assisting all in need without asking any remuneration for his services.

F. S. Andrews, the whole-souled landlord of the Taylor House, acted the part of the Good Samaritan during the flood, by throwing open his doors and doing all in his power for the needy and destitute. Mr. Andrews has proven himself a big-hearted, christian gentleman, and he will long be remembered by the citizens of Augusta.

Death of Dr. John M. Duke.

Dr. John M. Duke, who has been very ill for some months past, died at his residence, on Front street at nine o'clock Sunday evening.

Dr. Duke was the son of Dr. Basil Duke and was born at Washington, this county, Oct. 29, 1811. His father was a Marylander by birth; came to Kentucky and located in Lexington, but soon after removed to Washington, where he practiced medicine until his death in 1828. His mother, Charlotte Marshall, was the daughter of Col. Thos. Marshall, of Fauquier county, Va., a man of superior talents, who was a Colonel in the Revolutionary war, and father of a family of fifteen children, the oldest of whom was Chief Justice John Marshall, not only an illustrious American judge, but one of the greatest and best of men. Dr. Duke received a liberal education at the school of Dr. Lewis Marshall, in Woodford county, subsequently pursuing a course of study under his brother, James K. Duke. He chose the profession of medicine and began his preparation in 1828, at Hopkinsville, under Dr. John F. Henry, afterward professor in the Medical College of Ohio; continued his medical studies with Dr. Henry for four years; in the meantime attending lectures at Transylvania University and the Medical College of Ohio, and graduating from the latter institution in 1832, and in the same year located for the practice of his profession at Washington, his native town.

In 1834, he was married to Hannah Morton, daughter of John M. Morton, of Maysville, and in the same year removed to this city where he has since resided. He was for a term of twenty years a member of the city council and was a valuable member of the community professionally and as a citizen. In 1864, he was a delegate to the National Convention that nominated George B. McClellan for the Presidency. During the late war he was a Union man and was formerly a member of the old Whig party.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock.

A great deal of damage was done by the back water from the river on Cabin Creek.

Mrs. Presley Tolle is in feeble health.

Something similar to cholera has made its appearance near Orangeburg.

They have a novel way at Mt. Gilead, of keeping cows out of cornfields &c., they shoot them. Its effectual if not profitable.

Uncle Oliver Mason, says the next time he goes to Maysville, he will wet the inside in place of the outside. He drove in the river.

There was a knock down at the protracted meeting which was being held at Restonville, conducted by Elder Bullock, Tuesday night last. The combatants were Webster and Sims. Bad effect, Mr. Bullock your preaching has. Please preach "Peace on earth and good will to man."

We have also, a wash to record but only a finger. Mr. Calvert was putting a log of wood on the fire and the end of the stick caught it against the jam. Mr. Calvert says it didn't feel very good; he will lose the nail.

Mrs. Wallingford gave an entertainment in honor of Miss Durant. Mr. Chas. Calvert and wife, Mr. W. T. Calvert and Miss Nannie Calvert were among the guests. It is very pleasant to meet with friends at a friend's house especially at the dinner table.

Our enterprising merchant, Presley Tolle is doing big a business he is very popular with his customers. He has large bell erected on a pole which is rung at stated intervals, he says it is to scare away evil spirits.

REPORTER.

How Craft Received the Verdict.

Grayson Cor. Louisville Commercial.

During the reading of the verdict Craft stood up and faced the jury, but not a muscle quivered, and he appeared perfectly calm and motionless. His attorneys then asked leave to retire and consult, and in a few minutes returned and Craft was removed from the court room. An appeal will be taken.

A signal had been agreed upon between the guard and the camp should the verdict be rendered. A white handkerchief was waved, and Neal was told of the verdict of the jury. He immediately burst into tears, turning as white as a sheet.

At 1 o'clock Craft was brought in and sentenced. He appeared smiling, though a trifle pale. Judge Brown then asked him if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him, to which he replied:

"I will tell the truth. I am not guilty. I have not had time to get all my witnesses here and have not had a fair trial. I never placed my hands on those children in my life. I never laid the weight of my hands on them. The closest I was to that house that night was lying in my bed asleep. I never saw any of those children that night. I assisted all I could to save the burning house, not knowing the children were burned up. I shall stand up on the scaffold and in the sight of high heaven proclaim my innocence. I am as pure of this crime as the angels in heaven. The day is coming when the truth about this thing will come, and I shall be proved innocent. I am glad I can stand here to-day and tell these people I am innocent. If everybody in this court-house was as clear as I am Mrs. Gibbons would have her children with her, but I bear it all with patience. It is a put-up job."

Here Craft was interrupted by Mrs. Gibbons' who was sitting near and who burst into tears, exclaiming: "My children! Oh! my dear, darling children!"

The effect was electrical and the excitement for the moment intense.

Judge Brown then sentenced Craft to be hanged on Friday, May 25th.

The public, who used to assemble in crowds in the Castle Yard, Dublin, to witness the arrivals at the Lord Lieutenant's levee, were for the first time excluded last month. The yard was kept by a company of the Coldstream Guards; policemen in uniform lined the hall, and detectives guarded the stairs leading to the Throne Room.

M. Fallieres, the recent French Premier, who has just been succeeded by Jules Ferry, owes his success in life largely to his pleasant manners. He has disarmed many a foe by honeyed words, and made either a friend of him or a sympathetic adversary. But underneath caressing ways there is the astuteness of the lawyer, and although he is all things to all men he takes care to be the dupe of nobody.

A German naval officer has obtained leave of absence for a year, in order that he may proceed to China to instruct the Chinese officers in the use of the Schwartzkopf fish torpedo. The Chinese Government has just ordered half a dozen torpedo boats at Stettin. Their navy now includes two ironclads, one monitor, two frigates, twelve speed corvettes, and thirty gun-boats, besides paddle steamers and transports.

The Lessing Association of Free Thinkers at Leipzig having offered a prize of 500 marks for the best essay upon the "moral laws based solely upon unquestionable facts in the natural experiences of man, which are fitted to furnish a guide for human action in the various relations of life," has now awarded the prize to an instructor in philosophy at the University of Berlin. The judges in this contest were Dr. Herman Grimm, Dr. Lasker, and Prof. Scherer.

Early Training.

A few days ago a couple of Pyrenean bears passed our door in charge of a Spanish keeper. One of them could perform a great variety of tricks, and was almost as expert in his gambols and exploits as a trained monkey. The other was clumsy and stolid in his performance, and as less intelligent, apparently, than his companion. The keeper explained that they were brothers, and the only difference between them was that one had been caught six months earlier than the other, though both were caught when cubs, and added: "If you only catch a bear young enough you can train him to do most anything." The same remark is equally applicable to many animals besides bears. Its explanation is not difficult. One of our most acute observers, an eminent authority in science, explains how so many "strange customs and superstitions, in complete opposition to the true welfare and happiness of mankind have become all-powerful throughout the world" by the fact that "a belief constantly inculcated during the early years of life, while the brain is impressible, appears to acquire almost the nature of an instinct, the very essence of which is that it is followed independently of reason."

The young child is as wax in the hands of the mother. She can mold it as she chooses—no, not as she chooses, but according to her ability, even as the sculptor his model according to his ideal and the mastery of the principles of his art. Every right minded mother would form her child according to the highest ideals of intelligence and virtue, if she had the ability, and many a mother grieves that she is so inadequately fitted for this great work, and weeps with Mrs. Judson in her wail—Poor babies, to have no guide but me! A bit of wax no larger than the fist, or a block of marble a few inches square, may be made, in skillful hands, to take the shape of any one of the great masterpieces of art. Many a boy of mediocre ability has in him the elements that, if rightly developed and the superfluous material chiseled away, might make of him a perfect model of noble manhood. Here is the knot of the problem—to perceive the ideal lines and to remove everything that hides them. This is the mother's task—to fill her house with living statues, or with statuettes, perfect in outline and symmetry. The material that is in her hand may not be of quality or in quantity to make colossal statues, but if she succeeds in making it into good models, in making of it the best that can be made, her duty is well done.

It must not be forgotten that the mother trains her child as much by what she is as by what she does. She is the atmosphere of her child. She is like "the vast laboratory of the air, which, seeming to be nothing or less than the shadow of a shade, hides within itself the principles of all things." What she is is stamped ineffaceably upon her child's being, and he grows toward her by attraction or away from her by repulsion, according to the development in him of qualities which may come to him during his growth by cultivation, by inheritance from another source, or by natural development. For, as some plants have a succession of leaves—semina, primordial, persistent—so some children show a succession of traits and qualities, and in many totally disappear the promise of their youth. To change his figure, some children go through as many mental and moral metamorphoses before reaching the mature state as the frog does, and in some stages of their development almost drive their parents to despair. Others excite the liveliest hopes of ultimate noble maturity, to bitterly disappoint them. The child must develop according to the idiosyncrasies of his being, according to the law of its own organization; but, this being true, it is possible for the mother who begins in seasons to impress certain fundamental truths and right principles on the brain and heart of her child that he can never outgrow, or escape their influence, and these principles shall constantly antagonize tendencies in him to evil and strengthen tendencies to good, so that his whole being during its entire existence shall respond in every stage of its development to her maternal teaching.—N. Y. Tribune.
